

Maya Sakran was born and raised in Maghar, a town in northern Israel, and is a member of the Druze community. She is currently serving as a Jewish Agency emissary for her first year at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire.

Maya completed her national service at a school for at-risk youth, where she worked as a teaching assistant and social mentor. She then pursued higher education at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, earning a degree in Accounting and Business Administration. During her time at university, Maya worked as a coordinator in the Social Involvement Unit at the Student Dean's Office and served as a university ambassador in the Ambassadors Program, representing the institution to prospective students, donors, and academic and administrative staff globally.

In addition to her academic and ambassadorial roles, Maya worked with the Tax Authority as an Income Tax Supervisor Assistant for two years, enhancing her expertise in her field.

Maya is deeply committed to diversity and social engagement. She is passionate about making a positive impact in the community and is eager to connect with and learn from students at Dartmouth. She looks forward to sharing her personal experiences and engaging with the student body to understand their stories as well.
